QUITTAPAHILLA
Lebanon Valley College
Annville, Pennsylvania 17003
Volume 79

During the marching band's halftime field show, sophomore Deric Wertz and junior Pete Bauer entertain the football fans with a duet.

Nervously awaiting opening night, Cynthia Lerch and Rachel Merritt watch one of the final rehearsals of the fall play.

Anxious to get back to studying, Patty Shade and Karen Henry return to Silver Hall.

An attentive crowd of football spectators gathers on a Saturday afternoon in the fall to cheer the Dutchmen on to victory.

Tired from shoveling snow after one of the many winter storms, Jana Hurst takes a rest to look at what she has accomplished.

On a sunny spring day, a student plays frisbee in the social quad.

Steve Croyle poses for the camera at a meeting.

Lisa Hollowbush, Debra Popper, and Collette Drumbheller sit at the end of a Silver hallway.

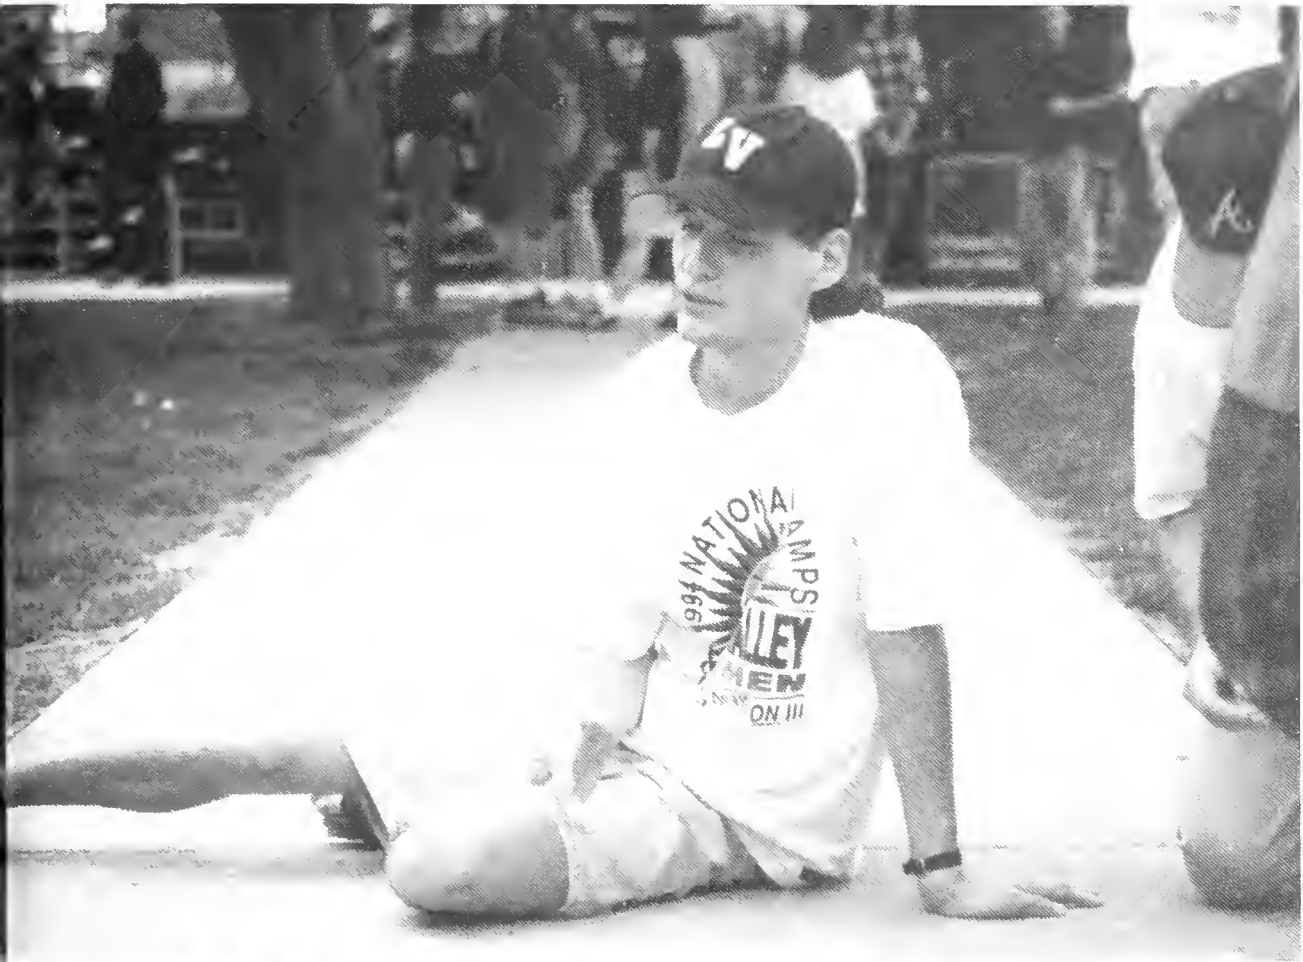

Big smiles for a big win in Buffalo, where the basketball team captured the National Championship.

Kelly Fisher studies diligently in the library.

A familiar sight in the social quad, the gang hangs out in front of Mary Green.

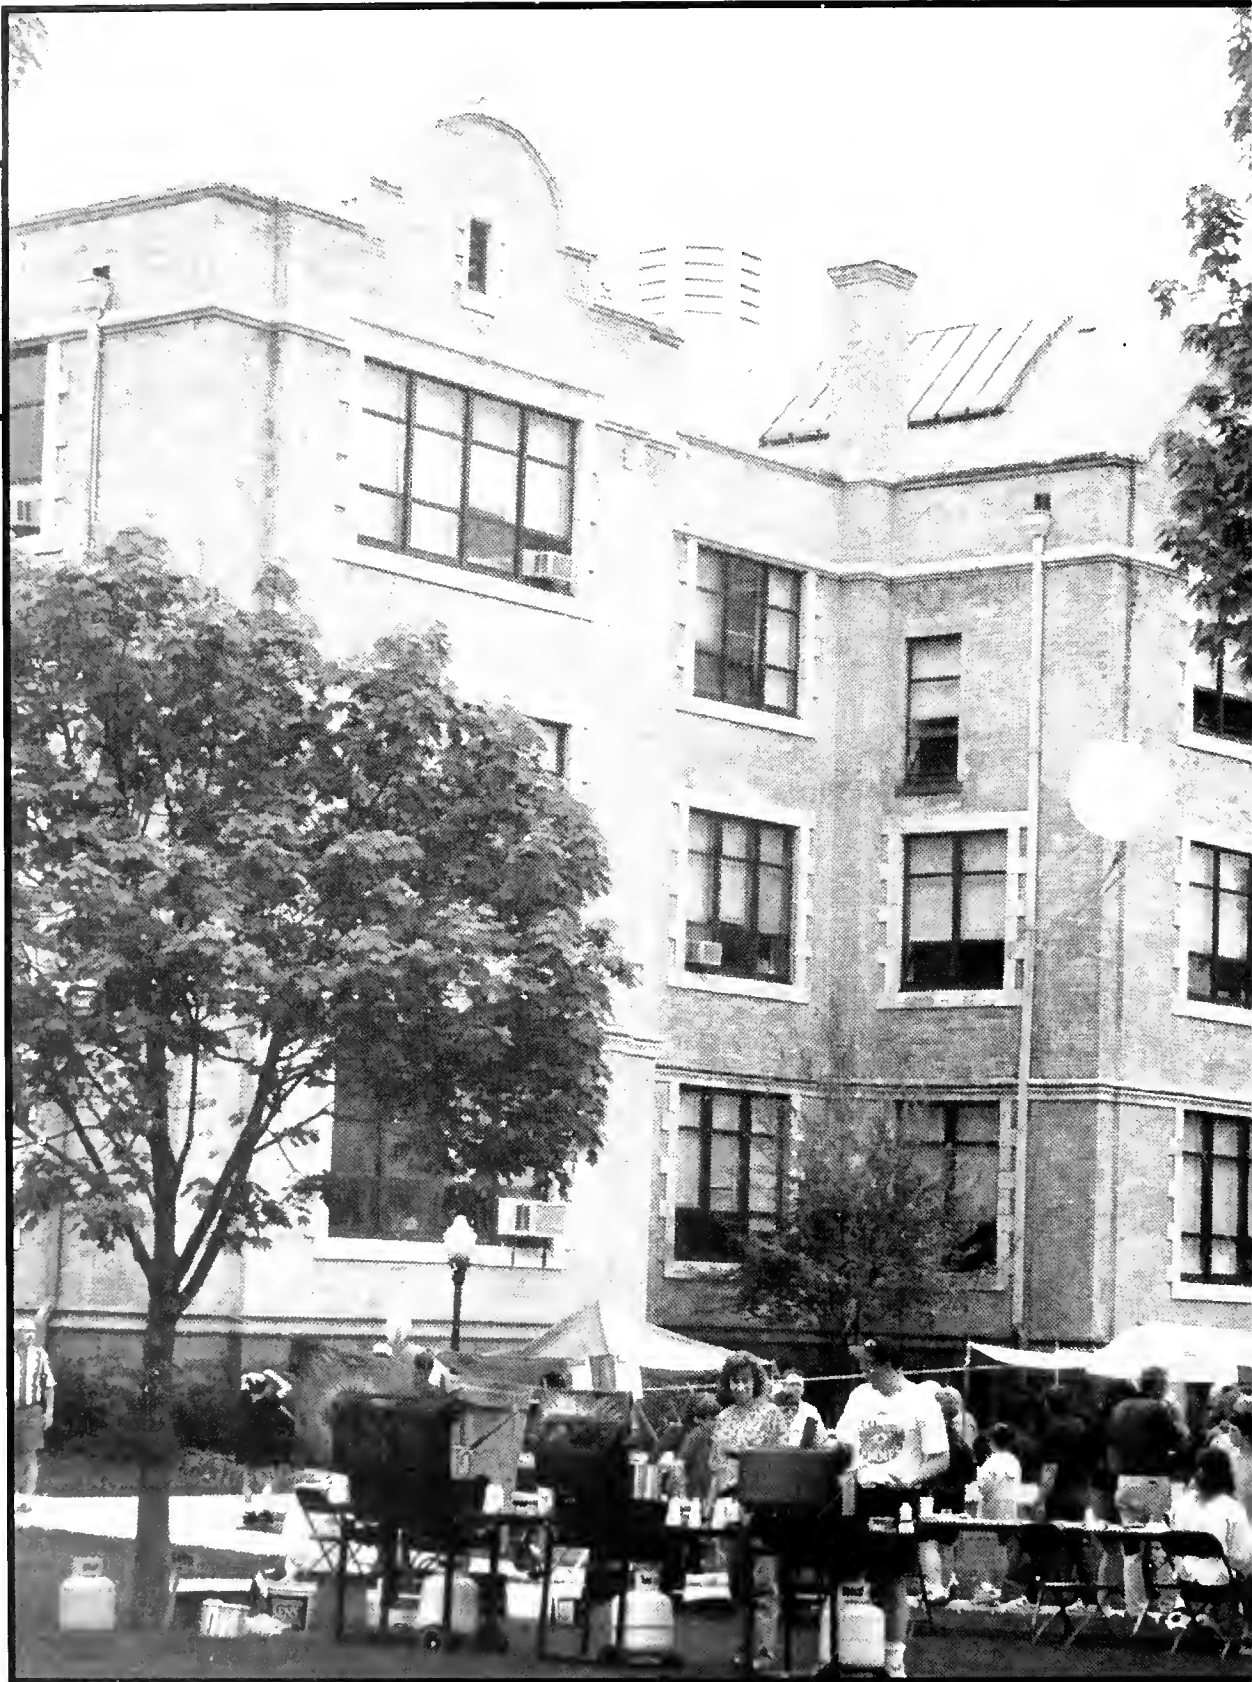

Jason Henery draws with chalk on the sidewalk during Spring Arts Weekend.

Jenna Mitchell turns to say hello as she studies in Silver's lounge.

STUDENT LIFE

Campus during its most festive activity, Spring Arts Weekend.

Sumo Wrestling in front of Vickroy Hall was a popular event on campus.

AMAZING MAIZE MAZE FAMILY WEEKEND

The Amazing Maize Maze and Family Weekend were two of the highlights of campus activities in the fall. The Maze raised thousands of dollars for the American Red Cross Disaster Relief Fund. Family Weekend, an annual event, gave students an opportunity to show off the campus.

Coach Pat Flannery welcomes parents to LVC in the College Center.

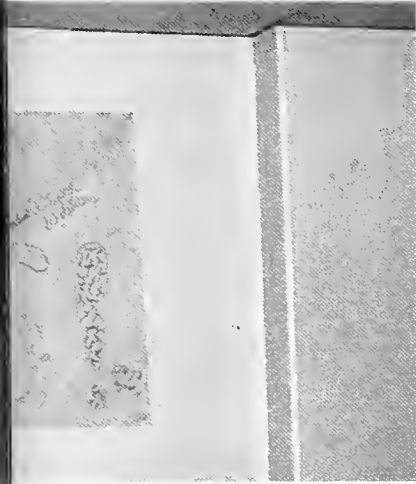

A sign to greet the visiting parents is hung in the lobby of Silver.

MAIZE MAZE

The adventure begins as a group awaits their entrance into the maze.

Campus groups provide food and entertainment for maze customers.

Excitement is in the air as the cheerleaders hold the Homecoming banner the football team will soon charge through.

Ready to send the Greyhounds to defeat, the team runs onto the field during pre-game ceremonies.

The LVC Marching Band is joined by alumni in playing the National Anthem.

HOMECOMING

Homecoming was a busy weekend on the campus of Lebanon Valley College. In addition to the usual schedule of events, the Amazing Maize Maze was part of the festivities.

Many alumni returned to visit their alma mater and to participate in activities including playing with the marching band, and attending various athletic events.

One of the highlights of the day was the football game. The Dutchmen defeated the Moravian Greyhounds by a score of 15 to 13.

During halftime of the football game, spectators waited anxiously to find out who would be the 1993 Homecoming King and Queen. The honors went to Catherine Crissman and Rodney Kovach.

Saturday evening, students and alumni were entertained by Bela Fleck and the Flecktones.

A good time was had by all.

The candidates for Homecoming Queen await the announcement of the winner. Catherine Crissman won the title.

Just outside the maze, campus groups set up food stands for the Homecoming visitors.

Theater and Christmas at the Valley

The Wig and Buckle Society, LVC's drama organization keeps busy throughout the year. Many students on campus are actively involved in this group. The fall play was entitled, "The Night of Jan. 16". "View From the Bridge" was the mid-year production, and Godspell was the spring musical.

Christmas at the Valley is an annual event. The evening included performances by the Concert and Chamber Choirs and short presentations by several International students.

After the concert, the audience exited the chapel to find a live nativity scene. The participants in the nativity are members of the Christian organizations on campus.

Doug Pike hangs ornaments on the Christmas tree in the Chapel.

Members of the Christian organizations participate in the live nativity scene.

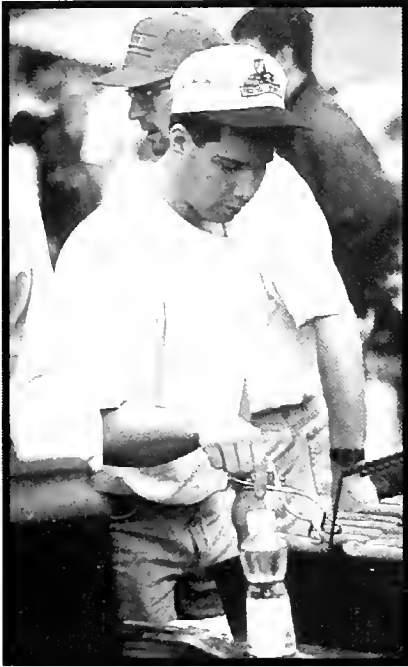

Troy Neidermyer presents his case in the fall play.

"Let's do it one more time," says Rachel Merritt, director of the fall play.

At the Philo Cheesesteak stand, Josh Howard and Simone Attieh prepare the food.

Jeff Reazor turns the sausage on the grill at the TKE Spring Arts stand.

Part of the weekend's entertainment, the LVC Jazz Band wows the crowd on Saturday afternoon.

Ed Brignole plays the guitar during Saturday morning's band competition.

SPRING ARTS

Alumni Weekend

Spring Arts/Alumni Weekend was an outstanding event during the spring semester. Saturday morning's activities included an assortment of bands playing in back of the chapel, drama readings, and plenty of shopping at the craft tables.

There was also a wide variety of food available, thanks to the many campus clubs and organizations that set up stands.

In addition, there were a number of musical groups on campus playing in front of the College Center, as well as a juried art show inside.

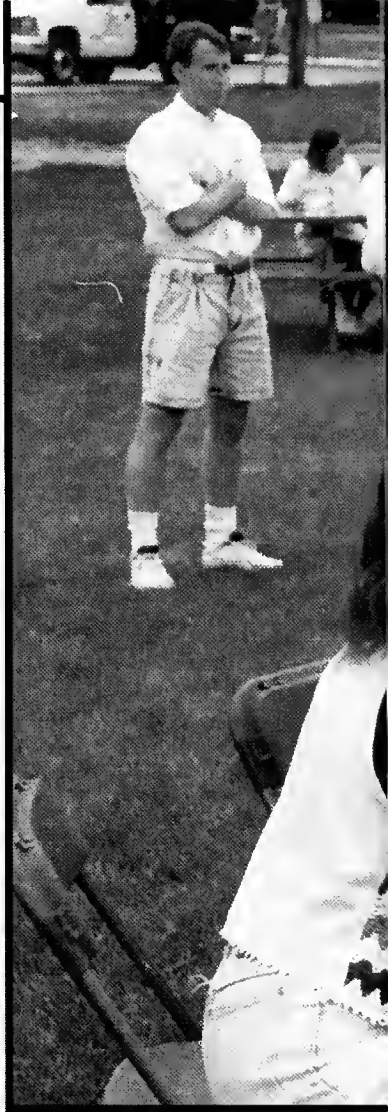

Josiah Novack volunteers at a table in the middle of the food area.

Visitors and students walk through the decorated social quad.

SPRING ARTS FESTIVAL

National Champs!

Men's Basketball

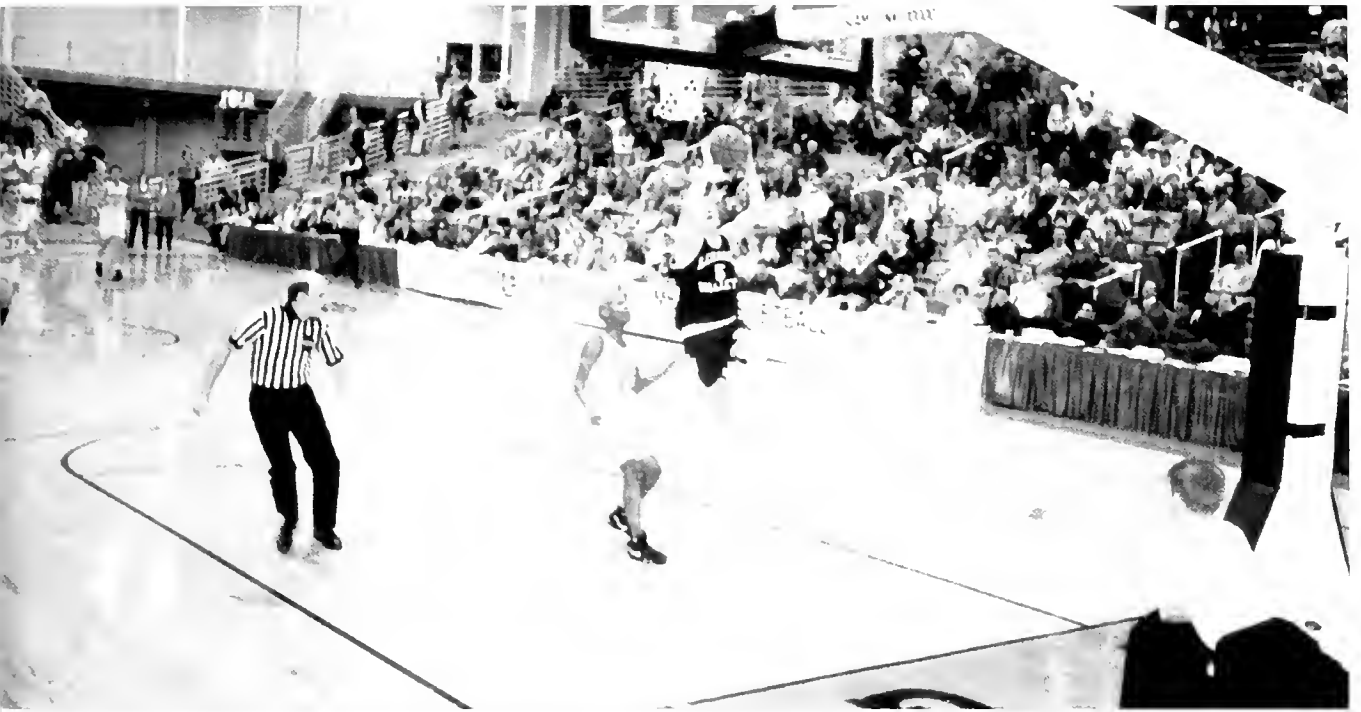

National Champions. The 1994 Men's Basketball team of Lebanon Valley College is the NCAA Division III National Champion. This is the first time in the school's history that any team has won a national title. The team's season came to a fantastic conclusion at Buffalo State College, in Buffalo, New York during the weekend of March 18 and 19. On Friday evening, the Dutchmen defeated Wittenberg College in overtime. The team then moved on to play New York University in the championship game Saturday night. They pulled out the victory, again in overtime, and earned the national title.

The team's success can be attributed to many factors. One of these is the leadership of co-captains, junior Mike Rhoades and senior John Harper, who were both named to the all-tournament team. Rhoades was named an All-American this year, as well as co-most valuable player of the tournament. Harper contributed 17 points against Wittenberg and a total of 24 points in the entire tournament. The efforts of the other seniors, Steve Zeiber and Scott Stephenson also helped the team to victory.

In addition to the players' contributions, the team's consistent emphasis on TEAM and WE helped the players focus on themselves collectively and not individually, so that they could bring the National Championship title back to LVC.

Head coach Pat Flannery, in his fifth season with the Dutchmen, coached the team on to victory with his insight and constantly gave them encouragement. The Dutchmen's success is also attributed to the support from fans that followed them through the season and on to Buffalo.

Congratulations to both the players and the coaches on your National Championship.

Their wise and compassionate friend never failed

By Paul Harvey, Commentator

March 24, 1994

Every campus should have one.

Lebanon Valley College in Annville, Pa., has had Frank Aftosomes for 45 years. Generations of students knew him as Hot Dog Frank.

On the square just a block from campus, the Greek immigrant had his little hot dog shop.

Hot Dog Frank loved Lebanon Valley.

Any basketball season the Flying Dutchmen beat their arch rival, Albright, the hot dogs were on him.

Hot Dog Frank.

Any Lebanon Valley student needing counsel knew where to go.

Or money.

"Hot Dog, I can't pay this week, but I sure need something to eat."

And Hot Dog Frank never said no.

And in 45 years, not one student ever failed to repay.

Hot Dog Frank.

He was honored at half time at a basketball game last month, was made an honorary alumnus and learned the school planned a life-size statue of him on campus.

Frank, with little education but much learning, said his thanks through tears.

This year, the big climactic game of the basketball season brought tiny Lebanon Valley, enrollment 950, up against giant New York University, enrollment 49,000, for the national NCAA Division Championship.

The game's in Buffalo.

The score has been back and forth, and now with 2.9 seconds remaining, NYU is leading, but Lebanon Valley has the ball.

A desperation shot went wide, a following shot was missed-a second rebound was tipped in, but just as the buzzer sounded.

NYU fans rushed onto the court, thinking they had won.

But the referee said the buzzer came AFTER the ball cleared the basket; the score was good, the game was tied.

It was the slow buzzer that sent the game into overtime.

And in overtime, tiny Lebanon Valley went on to win over big New York University 66 to 59.

Lebanon Valley has never won a national championship before.

Hot Dog Frank?

He was not there.

Nor did he see that climactic game on TV. Just before game time, at the age of 92, Frank Aftosomes had died.

But the president and students of Lebanon Valley have no doubt that there were six players playing for the Flying Dutchmen that final game.

They are proceeding with the statue on campus with one change.

The bronze likeness of Hot Dog Frank will wear a signet ring - the same ring worn by the 1994 NCAA Division Three National Champions - the Flying Dutchmen of Lebanon Valley.

For everybody in the Lebanon Valley knows whose finger was on the buzzer Saturday night.
